METALLURGICAL INDUSTRY

THE EXCELLENCE OF MADE IN ITALY

BORN WITH HOT FORGING OF BRASS,

ENLARGING TO ALUMINIUM AND STEEL: THE VISION OF MECOLPRESS

Mecolpress, leader in the production of hot forging technologies is born from the passion of one single man. In the late 60's Pietro Molinari, with his associates Pietro Caggioli and Giulio Barbisoni founded the company that in fifty years has been able to write a relevant page of Italian industry.

Mrs. Emanuela Molinari, CEO and daughter of Mecolpress founder explains the past, present and the future of Mecolpress: "I represent the second generation, but my daughters Anna and Giada are already present in the company to represent the third generation. My father used to design with the drafting desk. He had a strong passion for technical drawing and art painting too. As employee he decided to start his own business, thanks to his experience in the field of brass hot forging presses, that at that time were not so commonly used as they are nowadays".

The rest of the story can be told by Mecolpress success numbers: references in more than 60 countries, 2000 supplied presses, 60 employees, a turnover that for the 70% coming from export business, with Germany in the lead, and for the remaining part coming from Italy.

A life philosophy that became the Company vision: never give up in front of the difficulties, always look for the best solution focusing on quality.

As Danilo Fagnani, Sales Manager, highlights “today we have skills, tools and resources that contribute to the development of new technologies. Our aim is not to reach new markets but to improve the quality of what we offer every day. For this reason, as undisputed leader in the production of hot forging presses for brass components, in recent years we added the focus on technologies for steel and aluminum applications.

This is our current challenge and that is exactly why, in the last years, we have used and invested in specialized and qualified resources exclusively in the steel sector”.

Mecolpress has a prompt and clear response to the new requirements of a market that is changing, with the request of lower and lower production lots. This response has the aim to improve the performances reducing the costs and energy\media consumptions: not only a merely business matter but also an ethical factor.

From the pioneering vision of the founder - who was the first who travelled in countries like South of America and in South-East Asia - Mecolpress draws its innovative and propulsive force towards constant technological innovations, from 4.0 Industry to automation systems with anthropomorphic robots, from the latest informatic technologies to the energy\media consumptions reduction in a green and eco-friendly perspective, till to arrive to a complete and worldwide extended Service, real pride of the company: "if the customer comes back to us, it is not only for the satisfaction of top quality machines, but also for the offered Service. Thanks to our warehouse we can carry out ordinary and extraordinary maintenance operations even on machineries of 40 years ago. At the same time, we can also afford to put into production machines before they are ordered by the Customers, so that delivery times are considerably shortened", Emanuela Molinari highlights. She is determined and strong like her father, who not by chance chose a rhinoceros (designed by himself) as Company logo.
